Man Charged With Murder in Huntington Park

A 21-year-old man was charged today with murdering an acquaintance near a police station in Huntington Park last week, the Los Angeles County District Attorney's Office announced.

Jorge Godoy (dob 3/24/93) was charged in case BA434355 with one count of murder and a weapon allegation. He is scheduled to be arraigned today in Department 30 of the Foltz Criminal Justice Center.

Prosecutors said Godoy was in the 6700 block of Miles Avenue with two other men on March 5 when they were approached by Daniel Ramirez.

Ramirez, who knew all three men, got into an argument with Godoy. Prosecutors said Godoy is accused of pulling out a large-caliber gun and shooting Ramirez in the face. The victim died at the scene and Godoy was arrested a short time later.

Prosecutors are recommending bail be set at $2 million. If convicted as charged, Godoy faces a possible maximum sentence of 25 years to life in prison.

The case remains under investigation by the Huntington Park Police Department.
